Who's Teaching Whom Report
Summer 2003

Prepared by

Definitions

This report shows sections taught from department and faculty perspective. It includes all organized course/sections (lectures, laboratories and seminars) taught by faculty in an academic department. The section count keys on each unique section meeting time and location as follows:

- Standalone lectures, labs and seminars are grouped together and counted once.
- “Meets With” or common lectures or labs are counted once.
- Cross-listed and team-taught lectures, labs or seminars are counted once if the faculty members teaching the course are in the same department. If the faculty members are from different departments then the sections are counted once in each department.

This report provides an accurate count of sections taught (by unique meeting time and location) for each department. However when department counts are summed up into college and university totals, those totals can include double counting. For this reason, the report should not be used as a source for the number of sections taught. Please refer to Average Class Size report produced by OISP.

When meeting time or location is unknown and cross-listed flag is not set, the section is excluded from the combination algorithm described above and is therefore counted as a distinct section.

The SCH and WSCH portions of this report include all courses taught by departmental faculty (not just organized courses). Although this report is generated from certified data, the SCH and WSCH should not be used from this report, because the SCH and WSCH for KINE 198 and KINE 199 courses are separated and listed in the last three chapters of this report.
